

Born in St. John's into a musical family, Erin Best has been a lifelong singer and songwriter. She began her formal music education with the much-loved Eileen Stanbury, which led to recordings and international performances with vocal ensembles under the direction of celebrated choral director Susan Quinn.

For 25 years Erin has been writing, performing and recording with guitarist Sandy Morris as RASA. Erin also recorded albums and toured Canada with reggae dance band IDLERS.

Music inspired Erin to cultivate an interest in intellectual property law, which led to her career as a lawyer and partner with Stewart McKelvey.
